Justine's sound, is a fresh take on her influences of R&B, jazz-soul, and pop– with a refreshing contemporary edge that is all her own. The Calgary-born songstress, packs soulful vocals, catchy hooks and melodic stylings into one incredible sound– that is described as leaving listeners “hypnotized for more!” – Michelle Yi, KOOL 101.5

Justine Tyrell has earned nominations for Singer of the Year, Solo Artist of the Year, Media Personality of the Year (Obsidian Awards), and has went on to be named one of Branded Magazine's 'Game Changers, in her City of Calgary, Alberta'. She has been featured on CBC Radio, received nods from Stingray Music, featured in Metro and went on to see exciting success with the release of her latest single, 'Hopes Up'.

Her music chronicles to the bitter and sweet tastes of love and relationships, and reflective diary-like moments– with a smoky unabashed, and unapologetic nature. Justine Tyrell creates a vibey and refreshing soundtrack, to suit listeners as they move through the moods of their own lives.

Early on, Justine's love of music was undeniable- growing up in an eclectic household around everything from R&B and Hip Hop, to Blues and Country. She wrote her first song at the age of 7, from the basement of their family's small home in Calgary, AB - and describes music as being her first love, and way to process the world – starting with some of her earliest moments.

Always performing, learning as many instruments as she could get her hands on – and never missing an opportunity to recruit her young friends to join 'the band' – Justine was always certain, that bringing music to people was what she wanted to do.

When asked about her largest influences and greatest musical memories growing up – she says it's as somewhere between “discovering my first Aaliyah CD, crying to the first Amy Winehouse song I'd ever heard, scribbling down song ideas in the back of my journals– and the feeling I got when the hair stood up on end, at my first concert.” She concluded with how she started singing, writing and performing, because of how music naturally made her feel. Through music, she felt like she was never alone, always had a place to belong – and had something to capture her mood, or make a moment that much better. Now, she hopes to bring that very same feeling to her listeners, while giving them something of their own to get lost in.
